Vinyl Plank Options

Vinyl Plank Floor gives you the choice to have the look of hardwood or tile in your house at a cheaper price. They are all easy to clean, scratch resistant, waterproof and more. Learn the most popular kinds of vinyl plank floors.

Solid Polymer Core (SPC)

This includes a solid PVC core with a thin traditional LVT cap to form the visual. The PVC core is solid and stiff with indentation and temperature stability properties. This SPC product can be installed without any glue.

Expanded Polymer Core (WPC)

Produced with a solid PVC core instead of a solid PVC backing. WPC has tiny air pockets in the core that build great sound properties in a space. WPC core is put together with a traditional thin LVT Cap to give it a visual and has an attached pad on the back to provide softness under foot. It has a locking system as a floating floor, no glue required.

Traditional Luxury Vinyl Tile (LVT)

LVT floor has multiple layers of PVC making it less rigid than the stiff products. It has a scratch wear-decorative layer and a durable flexible backing layer. It is stable, reliable, and glued to the floor in an installation.
